JOHN JAMES (JACK) ADAMS

General Manager

Born: Fort William, Ontario, June 14, 1895

Last season Jack Adams successfully met what was perhaps one of the most formidable challenges of his lengthy and legendary hockey career. Faced with the job of reorganizing a team that had finished in last place the previous season and was seemingly doomed by all the early predictions to an identical destiny in 1959-60, the Detroit Manager went to work with one purpose in mind —to return his team to a position to which it was more accustomed. For prior to 1958-59, Adams' teams had been in the post-season playoffs for 20 consecutive years, from 1938-39 on. With this remarkable streak broken and a cellar club on his hands, he huddled with coach Sid Abel and, through trades, farm system promotions, and hard work on the part of both the players and the management, came up with a winning team. The Wings made the pre-season estimates look foolish as they pulled into a fourth-place spot, and went on to give Toronto a rough time in the playoffs.

But let's revert to the past for a moment and go back to the start of the Jack Adams story. Back 34 years ago. . .

The scene is Detroit, a growing city soon to become the automobile capital of the world. The time is 1927, a year of prosperity and boom times. Through the doors of Detroit's newly-constructed Olympia Stadium strolls a 32-year-old man. Unknown to him, the city of Detroit or the world of hockey, the guiding hand and the solid foundation of the Detroit Hockey Club comes through that door with him. Now, 34 years later, Jack Adams is the dean among the General Managers in the National Hockey League. This year marks his 43rd season of association with professional hockey and his 34th year of controlling the fortunes of the Red Wings. His record of longevity is greater than that of any other man who has served the game.

Only the year before the genial Fort William Irishman came to Detroit he was playing with the Stanley Cup champion Ottawa Senators. By his own initiative, he was recommended and appointed to the coaching job with the new Detroit franchise by NHL president Frank Calder. With the acceptance of the new position, Adams left behind him an outstanding ten-year playing record with Toronto, Vancouver and Ottawa. From his initial playing days in Michigan's Copper Country through his brilliant pro career to the days of coaching and managing the Red Wings, he has become one of hockey's living legends.

At the time of his switch from playing in Ottawa to coaching and managing in Detroit, he boasted a wealth of hockey knowledge gained the practical way, on the ice. He had set a Western League record for scoring, and he had started and finished his playing span in identical fashion, by being a member of a Stanley Cup winning team.

This, however, was only a prelude to a more brilliant career. Adams almost single-handedly built the Red Wing organization and the game of hockey in the Midwest. He made his team the best-known of the United States' clubs in the National League. Certainly it has become the most successful in achieved results.

His play patterns and his judgment of personnel as well as his farm system ideas have become models for other teams.

However, Adams' record of achievement in hockey is not limited to his contributions to Detroit and its organization. While the Red Wings are first in his heart, his total regard for the game itself has kept him with a youthful, progressive outlook. This has reflected itself in many contributions at a league level, which in turn led to the overall progress and growth in prestige of the sport of hockey.

Examples are the present penalty rule whereby a man is discharged from the box following an opponent's score; ice resurfacing between periods; the players' pension society; television and video taping of home games; many of the phases of agreement between profssional and amateur hockey and between the National and minor leagues.

All of these have stemmed from Adams' unceasing devotion to the game. He is dedicated not only to his team and his game but to the progress of each. Many promotional schemes of present day hockey can also trace their beginnings to his theories.

Through the years and with all this devotion to the game, Adams has remained a man so active that he has found time to participate in civic affairs as well as at his profession and to lead a full life.

His appearance as a candidate for the Detroit City Council a few years ago, his presence on the board of trustees of one of Detroit's larger hospitals are but two examples of his civic mindedness.

Two huge panels on the walls of his Olympia office contain several of his many plaques, symbols of the various and sundry honors he has come by during his career. One of the most recent accolades occured in September, 1959, when he was unanimously elected to Hockey's Hall of Fame.

As one of the few truly colorful personalities remaining in sports, he is in demand as a speaker at banquets. From the podium he delivers his speeches in much the same way as he addresses his hockey players, frankly and forcefully. His thoughts on both sports and life carry a grand lesson for his young listeners and his contemporaries alike.

Adams finds time to avidly follow the fortunes of the other big league sports teams in the Detroit area, and he views them with the same zeal he displays in hockey matters.

Jack and Mrs. Adams, the former Helen Trimble of Nepanee, Ontario, have made their permanent residence in Detroit for over 20 years.

His long and successful association with the Red Wings is perhaps equalled for sports longevity only by baseball's late Connie Mack or football's Amos Alonzo Stagg, in devotion to a single club.

SIDNEY GERALD (SID) ABEL

Coach

Born: Melville, Saskatchewan, February 22, 1918

Popular Sid Abel is in his third full year as coach of the Red Wings. Abel's leadership of the Detroit team began in January, 1958, when the 42-year-old former hockey great took over for Jimmie Skinner, who was forced by illness to retire from active coaching.

Abel is only the fourth full-time coach in the Detroit club's 35-year history. He is the first to bring with him such a brilliant playing record as a Red Wing as he compiled in his 11-year stay in Detroit. None of his predecessors—Jack Adams, Tommy Ivan, or Skinner—ever played for the Wings.

Two seasons at the helm of the Chicago Black Hawks mark Abel's previous coaching experience before he assumed guidance of the Detroiters. In his first year in the Windy City, 1952-53, Sid led the Hawks into the post-season playoffs on the basis of a fourth place finish, at that time their highest position in seven years.

The greatest center in Red Wing history, Abel made a name for himself through his superior leadership qualities, both in active performance and in inspirational efforts. Sid was the first forward in the history of the National League to win All-Star recognition at two different positions. He made the second team as a left wing in 1941-42 and was named to the first team center spot in 1948-49 and 1949-50 and to the second team in 1950-51.

Sid came out of Melville, Sask. to start his pro career in 1938 as a left wing with Pittsburgh, then Detroit's top farm club. He was originally scouted by the late "Goldie" Smith. Promoted to the Wings at the season's two-thirds mark, he saw little service. The following season he divided his time between Indianapolis and Detroit but again was not too active, this time due to a serious shoulder injury.

In 1941, he began his outstanding three-year stay at left wing on the old "Linament Line"—Abel, Eddie Wares and Don Grosso. Abel was captain of the Wings when they took the Stanley Cup in 1942-43, the first of three Cup winners that he captained. Two years in the Royal Canadian Air Force then interrupted his playing career. When he returned for a full season in 1946, he started on a six-year span as a top centerman and a superb leader.

He first shone brilliantly in 1948-49 when he was voted the most valuable player in the league, earning him the coveted Hart Trophy. The next year he had his top goal-scoring year with 34 as the Red Wings took their second straight NHL title. Working in the middle on the fabled "Production Line," Sid maintained that he could do his job in a rocking chair because his linemates—Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay—did theirs so well. As the years went on, Sid discovered that time was catching up to him, and after the 1952 playoffs, in which Abel led the Wings to the Cup in a record eight straight games, Sid, at 34, decided to retire from active playing. During the summer he accepted an offer to coach the Black Hawks, at which post he stayed for the next two years. Despite his desire to stick to coaching from the bench, Sid was forced by lack of man-power to become a playing-coach, using himself as a spot player only.

He resigned from his Chicago job to return to Detroit where he returned to being a representative of a tool and die firm and in addition, became a radio and television commentator on the hockey games at Olympia. He was occupied in these positions when he was approached to take over the Red Wings. As coach, he had to abandon his press box observations and comments but still holds down his other position.

Abel has a home in Southfield, a suburb of Detroit, where he is an active citizen, both in civic affairs and in youth work. He has given much of his time to the development of the youth hockey program in the Detroit area.

Sid, his two children and his wife are truly a hockey family. Mrs. Abel is the former Gloria Morandy whom Sid met and married when she was Jack Adams' secretary at Olympia. Son Jerry, who will be 16 in December, is a promising hockey player, a center who wears his dad's famous uniform No. 12. And 11-year-old daughter Linda is a die-hard Red Wing fan.

Respected throughout the league for having sound coaching judgment, and a view of the game as seen through the players' eyes, Sid possesses a calm philosophical attitude to coaching and winning and losing.

Abel was voted top coach by "Hockey Pictorial" last season when he guided a team destined to the cellar by pre-season estimates to a fourth-place finish. Moreover, he led his charges to the brink of a major upset when the Wings went six games with Toronto before losing out in the playoffs.

Born: Shaunavon, Saskatchewan, March 7, 1935. Height 5' 11". Weight 180 lbs.

Whether or not Gary Aldcorn can come up with another year in 1960-61 like he had last season, his drafting by Detroit from Toronto will still rate as one of Jack Adams' best player moves.

Aldcorn not only scored 22 goals and 29 assists to rank as the team's third highest scorer last year, but he performed more than adequately in all phases of the game. He proved to be a valuable addition to the Red Wing family and is counted on for another fine season this year.

A 25-year-old left wing, Aldcorn was a steady worker all year. He was with two different forward lines during the season, being switched from one unit to the other in mid-season. The change didn't bother his effectiveness and he went on to ring up his first NHL 20-goal year.

In last fall's training camp, he was installed on a line with Gordie Howe and Len Lunde. In January, Sid Abel changed the left-wingers, Alex Delvecchio and Aldcorn, on his top units in order to get more scoring punch. Gary thus finished the season with Norm Ullman and John McKenzie.

As a member of the Toronto organization for five years, Aldcorn had three unimpressive trials with the Maple Leafs. What did impress the Detroit brass was his play with Rochester two years ago. In skating to the left wing All-Star team berth, Gary tallied 37 goals and picked up 42 assists to become the fifth top point-man in the AHL in 1958-59.

When he was left off the protected list by the Leafs prior to the NHL draft the following summer, the Red Wings claimed him as their first choice. Adams maintains that it was the best $20,000 that he ever spent on behalf of the Detroit Hockey Club.

Statistics prove Aldcorn's value last year. Among his 22 scores were ten first goals of the game and 14 first Red Wing goals, making him the team's leader in these two important categories. Defensively, he was also adept, patroling his left lane with proficiency.

Aldcorn is one of the Red Wings' best good-will ambassadors, attending many athletic banquets and social functions as the team's representative. His good looks and fine personality leave a lasting and favorable impression.

Gary is single and lives in Winnipeg, Manitoba, during the off-season. Last summer he passed up Winnipeg and turned world traveler. Accompanied by two of his former Toronto teammates, Bob Pulford and Billy Harris, Aldcorn spent four months touring the European continent.

a Drafted by DETROIT, June 1959.

Born: Toronto, Ontario, July 29, 1932. Height 5' 11". Weight 180 lbs.

Pete Conacher was a late-summer acquisition by the Red Wings. The 5' 11", 180-pound left wing was obtained from Buffalo of the American Hockey League in an August trade for Barry Cullen.

Although Conacher has been with three other NHL teams, Chicago, New York and Toronto, the Detroit management feels that he has good potential and that it has not been gotten out of him. The one year he did approach his potential ability, 1953-54 with Chicago, his coach was Sid Abel. Now Abel has another chance to work with the 28-year-old winger.

With Buffalo, a Chicago farm club, last year, he scored five goals and had ten assists in 56 games. Two years ago, he was out of pro hockey and, as a reinstated amateur, played with the Belleville MacFarlands, the team that represented Canada in the world championships and took first place in the International tournament.

Conacher comes from a famous hockey family, two members of which are one-time Red Wings. His father, Charlie Conacher, after whom Pete is named, was a puck great with Toronto. Charlie spent the 1938-39 season with Detroit. His uncles are Lionel and Roy, both former NHL performers. Roy was with Detroit in 1946-47. However, Pete is no relation to another Conacher, Jim, who was a Red Wing from 1947-48 to 1950-51.

Pete, who was born and lives in Toronto, is single, and spent last summer doing construction work in his home town.

a Traded to DETROIT for Barry Cullen, August 11, 1960.

ALEXANDER PETER (ALEX) DELVECCHIO

Born: Fort William, Ontario, December 4, 1931. Height 6'. Weight 190 lbs.

After nine years in the National Hockey League, Alex Delvecchio still has not reached his full stature in the eyes of critical hockey observers. Whether or not he will hoist himself up to the top rung of the ladder of hockey stardom could be resolved this season. 1960-61 is the 28-year-old forward's tenth year with the Red Wings.

Listed as both a left wing and a center, he earned All-Star honors two years ago at the former post after playing center all his earlier years. Alex showed his admirable team spirit that year when, despite having a good season on the wing, he requested to be moved back to center in an effort to help shake the team out of a mid-year slump. Fortunately, the switch did not effect his All-Star rating. In the same year, 1958-59, Alex won the NHL's sportsmanship trophy, marking the first time he won a league cup. He compiled a superb record of only three penalties during the full 70 games. Last year, he received but four penalties.

Although the 19 goals he has scored in each of the last two years is a respectable total, Alex is regarded to possess the ability to be a 30-goal player. Hence, it is felt that he has yet to hit his peak production and efficiency. But contrary to his assumed continued improvement, his statistics show that he has fallen off the last two years, ever since his big season in 1957-58 when he had 21 goals and a personal high point total of 59. Still, his work has been good and steady enough to keep his name in the top five high scorers on the team and among the top 20 in the league for the past six seasons.

Delvecchio is nicknamed "Fats," reportedly because he is a jovial, easy-going, fun-loving person with a smiling face. Despite his nature, he is not lackadaisical on the ice, although the opinion has been ventured that what he lacks is more energy and drive in his play.

During last spring's playoffs, he demonstrated these qualities, returning to the form of the Delvecchio of old to become one of the leaders of the Detroit team that extended Toronto to six games before losing out.

He reached the 159 mark in goals last year and thus became the fifth highest goal-scorer in Detroit hockey history. 39 points this year will enable him to pass Sid Abel in fourth place among the Wings' all-time top point producers. Added to his goal-scoring records is a team mark he tied six seasons ago when he scored in five straight games. But typical of his puzzling lack of consistency is the fact that after this splurge he was shutout in the next 11 games. Last year he went through three separate non-scoring dry spells of eight, nine and ten games each.

Originally scouted in his native Fort William, he played junior hockey in Oshawa in 1950-51 where his coach was a former Red Wing star, the late Larry Aurie. He turned professional in the fall of 1951, and after six games with the Wings' Indianapolis farm, he won promotion to the parent club and has never been away from Detroit since.

All-Star election was not new to this highly-respected NHL performer. In his sophomore season in the circuit, 1952-53, Alex made the select team as a center. Thus, when he made the team again in 1958-59 as a left wing, he became the second player in All-Star history to make the team at two different positions. The first was Sid Abel, present Detroit coach.

Alex' best scoring years were 1955-56 when he tallied 25 goals, and 1956-57 when he recovered from an early-season broken ankle to return to action and fire home 16 goals in 48 games. Since he came back from the ankle injury in December, 1956, he hasn't missed a game, regular season or playoffs, playing 271 consecutive games.

Delvecchio maintains a home in Fort William where he is the proud and prosperous proprietor of a furniture and sporting goods store that bears his name. Alex and his wife, Teresa, have four children, two girls and two boys.

a Won Lady Byng Trophy

VALERE RONALD (VAL) FONTEYNE

Born: Wetaskiwin, Alberta, December 2, 1933. Height 5' 9½", Weight 160 lbs.

For a player who had to be persuaded to attend the Detroit camp last fall, Val Fonteyne had quite a successful year with the Wings in 1959-60.

After Bud Poile had talked him into coming to the tryouts (he was reluctant to go because he felt he had not recieved a fair shake in his other trials with Detroit), Fonteyne was the sensation of the pre-season drills.

Though he was not even listed on the roster, his work impressed his bosses so much that his contract was purchased from Detroit's WHL affiliate, Seattle. Thus, after four years with Seattle, Val was now a major leaguer.

But he had to skate uphill to make the big time. Despite continued improvement out West season after season, Val was judged "not ready" for the NHL in each of his Detroit "look-sees" through 1958. But in 1959, the Wings wanted another look after he had a terrific year, scoring 32 goals and 81 points to earn WHL All-Star left wing honors.

From the camp's start, Val worked with Jerry Melnyk and Billy McNeill on Detroit's third line, a unit which became the fans' favorite. When they began to slow down and McNeill was traded in February, Len "Comet" Haley was installed as right wing and the line once again perked up. In the playoffs they were Detroit's top forward line, although dubbed the "Nothing Line" by Toronto writers at the start of the series.

Being a fan's favorite was nothing new to Fonteyne. He was one of the most popular players in Seattle's history. Val is a completely "honest" hockey player and probably the finest defensive left flanker in WHL history.

He is a tireless skater and also a gentlemanly player, as witnessed by record last year of only two penalty minutes. And he didn't get this one penalty until February, going the first 51 games of the season without a whistle blown against him. That this doesn't mean he backs off from anybody is evidenced by his all-out play in the corners. He is a real digger and goes into the corners with the same reckless abandon that he skates into the opponent's territory.

On the record, Fonteyne's performance in his rookie NHL year was not overly impressive. He scored only four goals and was blanked for the last 41 games of the season plus the six playoff games. To offset this lack of offensive power, Fonteyne developed into a valuable penalty killer. One of the fastest skaters on the team and a determined workhorse, Val handled this important job capably, especially during the playoffs.

Val, who is of French-Belgium decent, is a personable fellow with a fine sense of humor. His dark bushy eyebrows contrast with his short blond hair and make him easily recognized. A bachelor, he returns to his home town of Wetaskiwin for the summer.

HOWARD EDWARD (HOWIE) GLOVER

Right Wing

Born: Toronto, Ontario, February 14, 1935. Height 5' 11". Weight 175 lbs.

A promising right wing prospect, Howie Glover was acquired by Detroit last summer in a trade with Chicago in which defenseman Jim Morrison went to the Black Hawks.

A native of Toronto, Howie became connected with Chicago when they drafted him in 1958 from Jim Hendy's Cleveland Barons of the American League. Prior to this, he had been with the Toronto organization.

In fact, he was originally Maple Leaf property, playing Junior "B" hockey with the Weston Dukes in 1952-53 and Junior "A" with the Toronto Marlboros in 1953-54.

Howie also played amateur hockey with Kitchener and Barrie. He spent one season, 1956-57, in the International League with Toledo as a Cleveland farmhand. The next year he was sent to Winnipeg where he experienced his first big season, firing home 38 goals.

Th following summer, he was picked up in the draft by Chicago and spent the next season between Chicago's Western League club in Calgary and the parent Black Hawks.

Last year, the 25-year-old right wing came into his own and starred for Buffalo. He scored 31 goals and proved his reputation as a scraper by totaling 95 minutes in penalties.

Howie is the younger brother, by seven years, of Freddie Glover, a Red Wing player during the early 1950's who is now with Cleveland. In the AHL last year, the younger Glover was one of several good right wingers, the best of which was Freddie, who at 32 had his finest year.

WARREN EDWARD (ROCKY) GODFREY

Defense

Born: Toronto, Ontario, March 23, 1931. Height 6' 1". Height 190 lbs.

In his sixth season with the Red Wings and his ninth year in the National Hockey League, 29-year-old Warren Godfrey is one of the oldest Red Wing players in point of service in the NHL.

A tall, smiling Irishman with short-cropped blond hair, Rocky, as he is known around hockey circles, came to Detroit from the Boston Bruins in a nine-player trade in the summer of 1955.

A player whose career was intermittently stalled while working up the hockey ladder, Godfrey was first spotted by Muzz Patrick of the Rangers while playing for Tacoma in 1951. He got a spot on Muzz' brother's team, Boston, the next season. Thus, with but a single season of minor league play behind him, he started in the big time at the age of 21.

After three seasons as a Bruin regular, he joined the Red Wings as a result of a big trade in which he and Terry Sawchuk were the key names.

Warren's defense play in his five years with Detroit has been steady but unspectacular, and commendable but seemingly unrecognized. Last season he scored five goals, just one below his single-season high, and nine assists for 14 points. An unusual item about his goals is that all of them were against New York, the team whose manager is his discoverer, Muzz Patrick.

Godfrey is conspicuous on the ice because he is one of the few players in NHL history to wear a helmet. For the past two years, he has suffered concussions, and since last November has sported a protective head-gear.

Last summer, Rocky, an enterprising and enthusiastic businessman, went into partnership in a local sporting goods store, the A-J Sports Shop, in a suburban shopping center, Northland.

Godfrey is one of the many active and former Red Wings who have made Detroit their permanent home. A native of Toronto, he and his wife, Jannette, are the parents of four little Godfreys, Michelle 6, Kirk 4, Tony 2, and Tammy, born last October.

PETER JOHN (PETE) GOEGAN

Defense

Born: Fort William, Ontario, March 6, 1934. Height 6' 1". Weight 195 lbs.

Pete Goegan underwent a 100% improvement during the course of last season. The rough-tough defenseman was a standout with the Wings upon returning in February from his early-season exile to Edmonton.

The black-haired, jut-jawed rearguard had begun the year in a bench-sitting role with Detroit. He got into only eight of the 18 games he was here for, then was demoted to the minors in November.

The change started in Edmonton where Bud Poile, coach of Detroit's Western League entry, took charge of "Peaceful Pete." In the WHL, Pete became a pistol, and played the hockey he is capable of playing, both defensively and offensively.

Used both as a defenseman and a left wing, he scored 11 goals. And never one to back down from anyone, he managed fo get into enough scraps and fights to pick up 107 minutes in penalties—in only 40 games. Quickly, Pete was the terror of the Western League, a marked and hated man in all rinks but the Flyers'.

Summoned back to Detroit in February, Goegan took over a regular defense spot in the team's final 13 games. Edmonton's loss was Detroit's gain. He performed in an outstanding manner, demonstrating to himself and to the astonished fans that his record with Edmonton was no fluke.

He employed his fine shot to score three goals in that spell, and one more in the playoffs. All three tallies came against Toronto, and four of his five total NHL goals have been versus the Leafs.

Most surprising of all, Pete successfully avoided getting cheap penalties, which were his downfall in other flings with the Wings. Two seasons back, he led the team and was fifth in the league with 111 penalty minutes in 67 games.

A "policeman-type" defenseman, 26-year-old Goegan (pronounced Goy-gun) makes his rivals respect his fearless bodychecks. Not only in games he is tough along the boards, but in practices also. At times he is unpolished and crude in his efforts, but his enthusiasm for the game cannot be faulted. He goes at it all-out with a deep desire to learn the finer points of "defensemanship."

Pete first played pro hockey with Cleveland after playing senior amateur with the Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Indians. He joined the Red Wing system three years ago in a trade with Cleveland for Bucky Hollingworth.

Goegan, who is a carpenter in the summer, and his wife, Doreen, have a boy, James Dale, born April, 1960. The Goegan family lives in Pete's home town of Fort William, Ontario.

LLOYD WARD HADDON

Defense

Born: Sarnia, Ontario, August 10, 1938. Height 6'. Weight 180 lbs.

Tall, good-looking Lloyd Haddon has come up to the Red Wings through Detroit's farm system. He joined the team in February of last year from the Edmonton Flyers of the Western League.

With the Wings he was on hand for 18 games, but saw action in only eight and failed to garner a point.

Haddon turned professional at the end of the 1958-59 season and finished the year with Edmonton. He made the jump to the pro ranks from the Hamilton Tiger Cubs, Detroit's top amateur club in Eastern Canada.

Now 22, Haddon played his first five years of organized hockey in near-by Sarnia, his home town. He started up the ladder by playing junior "B" hockey with Burlington in 1955-56 and progressed to Detroit's "A" Club in Hamilton the next year.

He spent three seasons in the OHA with the Tiger Cubs. His last fling at hockey in the under-20 age bracket was his best. He scored 15 goals and added 29 assists for 44 points in 53 games before being sent on to Edmonton for the Flyers' last nine games.

A quiet and sincere worker who lacks only experience and confidence, Haddon is not known as a rushing defenseman, but one who is a rugged blocker who plays a steady game back of his own blueline.

GORDON HOWE

Right Wing

Born: Floral, Saskatchewan, March 31, 1928. Height 6'. Weight 201 lbs.

It is getting to be a common occurrence when Gordie Howe breaks a record during the hockey season, but it is something new when the greatest of all the Red Wings sets a record in the summertime. And that's exactly what Detroit's captain and premier right wing did last July. By signing his contract for the current season, he set a tenure mark with the Detroit Hockey Club, breaking his tie with Ebbie Goodfellow as the player with the most years of service as a member of the Red Wings. This is Gordie's 15th season in Detroit, which is one more than Goodfellow, the top-notch defenseman-forward who served the Wings 14 years, from 1929-30 until 1942-43.

The 32-year-old Westerner has had his name entered into the record books in his 14-year NHL career perhaps more times than any other player in the history of the league. Leader of the Detroit team, both in title and performance, Howe has already taken his place along-side the greats in Michigan sports history.

Last season saw the magnificent Howe add several records to his impressive collection. Chief among these was his becoming the league's all-time leading point scorer when he overtook Maurice Richard in January. His 977 points in 14 seasons left him only 23 points shy of the unprecedented total of 1000 points at the start of this season. The second of his new marks came when he was voted the circuit's most valuable player for the fifth time; no player in the history of the game has received this coveted recognition that many times. Previously, Gordie had been tied with Boston's great Eddie Shore with four Hart Trophies apiece. A third honor was his making the first NHL All-Star team for the seventh time. In eleven of his 14 years, he has been on either the first or second select teams.

Howe's 28 goals last season brought to 446 the number of pucks he has fired past opposing goalies since he broke into the big leagues in 1946. While he trails Richard in the goal-scoring department, he has held the mark in assists ever since he broke Elmer Lach's record three seasons ago. His 73 points in 1959-60 gave him sixth place in the scoring derby, a race in which he finished first on five occasions. This fact becomes all the more impressive when it is considered that the most times any other player has done this is twice.

In addition to Howe's many league honors and trophies, he has achieved local heights untouched by any other Red Wing. Among his many team attainments are 11 straight years as its leading goal scorer; he has paced the club in points as well in nine of these years. Indicating his value is the fact that he has been top man in all three offensive departments—goals, assists and points, in eight of his 14 years as a Redshirt. He has taken the Detroit Hockey Writers' award as the team's most valuable player seven times in the last eight years. Also, he has established a remarkable durability record. Howe has missed only 12 games in the last eleven seasons, and only 34 in his entire 14-year career. In ten of his 14 seasons he played the entire schedule.

The story of the uncovering of such a talent as Howe is becoming a legend in hockey. First scouted as a juvenile in Saskatoon by the late Fred Pickney, Gord moved East to Galt, Ontario, in 1945. But his age of 16 prevented him from playing with the Detroit-sponsored Galt juniors and he was forced to stay out of competitive hockey for a full year. However, merely practicing, learning and growing, he won a professional contract with Omaha the following fall on the strength of scoring two goals in his first pre-season appearance in the Detroit training camp.

A single year of minor league experience with Omaha brought him to Detroit when he was but 18 years old. He went through three unspectacular seasons before blossoming out and establishing himself as a star. This was in 1949; he's been a star, indeed a super-star, ever since.

Howe's great team play is shown by the fact that he is equally at home as a shot or play maker. This is aptly shown by his holding the record for assists in a career. It has been said that he passes off too much and robs himself of many scoring chances. He has developed his shot until he has to take a back seat to no one in this category. His ambidexterity which allows him to shoot either right or left handed is perhaps his greatest single ability on the firing line. In a defensive role, Howe is a respected checker, able to give out his share of resounding body-checks. Gordie has had to overcome several serious hockey injuries, the gravest of which was a head injury suffered in the 1950 playoffs which threatened his career.

A special honor came his way three years ago when he became the first active athlete in the history of the state of Michigan to be elected to the State's Sports Hall of Fame.

Immensely popular with sport fans everywhere, in Detroit, any of the league cities, or wherever he appears, Gordie possesses natural humility not always found in an athlete of such tremendous stature. Off the ice he is a quiet, soft spoken man with a clever sense of humor. However, he is a proud and dedicated athlete who has achieved his station in life through hard work and conscientious effort.

An athlete with potential to become a professional in almost any field he would choose, Howe sticks to golf as his second sporting love. Gord is rated as one of the better amateurs in the Detroit area. He has tried his hand at baseball, working out with the Tigers and giving a respectable showing. He is a perfect physical specimen and he takes pains to stay in condition all year around. Underlying his successful efforts as a professional athlete is his remarkable coordination with which he was naturally endowed but on which he worked continuously to improve to perfection.

Gordie was married in 1953 to a Detroit girl, Colleen Joffa. The Howe family now consists of two boys, Marty 6, and Mark 5, and a girl, Cathy, born March, 1959. A fourth child was expected in September. Gord has called Detroit his permanent home for some years now, having settled in one of the suburban areas. In the business world he is associated with Tiger star Al Kaline and Frank Carlin as manufacturers' representatives and in the tool and die business.

ALLAN EDMUND (AL) JOHNSON

Right Wing

Born: Winnipeg, Manitoba, March 30, 1935. Height 5' 11". Weight 185 lbs.

Added to the Detroit roster over the summer, Allan Johnson is expected to fill a hole that developed last season in the right side of the Red Wing attack.

Johnson became a Red Wing when he was purchased from the Montreal organization just prior to the NHL's draft meeting last year. The Detroit management went to the meetings seeking a pair of right flankers; when Johnson was put up for sale to them, the deal was accepted immediately.

As a Montreal chattel, Johnson spent the past pair of seasons with Spokane in the Western League. Previous to this, he had played a year with Shawinigan in the old Quebec League.

Johnson is a 25-year-old Westerner who patrols his right lane with exceptional two-way ability. In the WHL last year, the tall, rugged Johnson was voted the All-Star right winger.

Invited to the Montreal training camp the last two seasons, he had come closer and closer to staying in the big time. Last fall he was one of the last cuts, being farmed out to Spokane in the last week of drills. This year he should make the big jump into the NHL.

LEONARD MELVIN (LEN) LUNDE

Center-Right Wing

Born: Edmonton, Alberta, November 13, 1936. Height 6'. Weight 185 lbs.

Every athletic team has its perplexing players from year to year and Detroit's last year was Len Lunde, the 23-year-old center-right wing. Lunde's play both puzzled his bosses and himself; they were at a loss to figure out his troubles and he couldn't understand his lack of success.

Perhaps he was the unwilling victim of what is known in sport as the sophomore jinx. A player who has all the tools—size, skill, and a shot, Lunde had a very disappointing year last season. He scored only six goals, and went his first 29 games without scoring (he didn't score his first goal until his 30th game on December 19 at Toronto).

What makes his record all the worse is the contrast it makes with his performance of two years ago, his first year in the league. As a rookie, he tallied 14 goals and was voted the team's top freshman.

As a result of the lanky youngster's excellent first year, he was given the first-line center job at the start of last season. When he failed to produce, he lost his position, and continued to tail off until he ended up as a combination center-right wing on the fourth line.

During his dismal season, Lunde occasionally showed flashes of the ability that he possesses. These brief splurges only served to cause more of a riddle when he unaccountably fell back in the doldrums. It has been suggested that all he needs is more experience and confidence or perhaps he lacks maturity.

When he is going right, he can do tricks with a puck that make fans sit up and take notice. Whether he stays in center, the position he had always played, or takes up the wing spot permanently, Lunde has to face up to the fact that this is his decisive year, and the decision is his and will be arrived at on the basis of how he does on the ice.

Another player from Detroit's farm chain in Western Canada, Lunde played all his early hockey in his native Edmonton. He played junior with the Oil Kings and turned professional with the Flyers. He put in two good years with them, ranking fourth in WHL scoring the year before he was promoted to the Wings.

A tall, blond Norwegian, Len has a fine sense of humor which makes him the team's comedian. His displays of clever wit relax the players and make him one of the most popular members of the team. Lunde and his wife, Shirley, and their son, Dale, who will be two in February, live in Edmonton where Lenny keeps occupied as a golf course greenskeeper.

CALVIN PARKER MACDONALD

Born: Sydney, Nova Scotia, June 14, 1933. Height 5' 10". Weight 175 lbs.

Four years after the Detroit Hockey Club first attempted to obtain Parker MacDonald, they succeeded. In the summer of 1956, he was left off the protected list by Toronto, his original owners, and New York, which had finished third the previous season, took advantage of its earlier drafting choice and grabbed him before Detroit, which had ended second, had a chance.

After four seasons in the Ranger chain, MacDonald became a Detroiter as a result of his being picked up in the NHL draft last June.

A hustling, slightly-built left wing, he attracted attention last year the same way he did in 1956—by having a great season.

With the American League champion Springfield Indians, he scored 37 goals in a 73-point effort. With the Toronto-backed Pittsburgh Hornets in 1955-56, he garnered 35 goals and 32 assists to make him a desirable draftee.

MacDonald has over two National League seasons experience to his credit. Seven years ago, he put in 62 games with the Leafs. After going to New York, he was with the Rangers for most of the 1956-57 season and all of the 1957-58 campaign. For the last two years, he has been in the minors, being called up to the NHL only for a brief stay with the New Yorkers last season.

He was voted the All-Star left wing in the AHL last season. In this respect his case is similar to that of Gary Aldcorn. Two years ago, Aldcorn held down this same honor and was drafted by Detroit. Needless to say, the Wing management hopes that MacDonald will do as well as Gary did in his first year with the Red Wings.

JOHN ALBERT McKENZIE

Right Wing

Born: High River, Alberta, December 12, 1937. Height 5' 9". Weight 170 lbs.

Half of Detroit's successful "draftee team" of two summers ago, John McKenzie proved to be a valuable member of the Red Wing squad last year.

The little right wing's constant drive, determined effort, and furious and peculiar skating style made him a favorite with the fans.

Actually an untested player when he lined up with the Redshirts, he remained as such in the first part of the schedule. But through work and hustle, John elevated himself from a spare forward into the number two right wing on the team.

His value was made clearly apparent when he was forced out of the lineup three weeks before the season's end due to a badly banged-up right knee, and none of his replacements were able to do the job that he had been doing.

Although he returned in time for the final pair of playoff games after missing the last 11 games of the regular season, the check he received in New York in February in reality ended his playing for the year.

Now completely recovered from the knee injury, he has also been given a clean bill of health from another ailment, undulent fever, a blood disease that saps a person's energy. This stamina-reducing condition was discovered in a lengthy examination during a post-season hospitalization last summer which was ordered by Jack Adams, who had noticed something wrong with John's endurance.

A short, stocky player, John has twinkling eyes and a devilish look about him. Full of good humor, he is constantly kidded about his stature by his teammates. He takes this good-naturedly, but will stand for no funny stuff on the ice and can take care of himself against anyone. He is a rough-tough competitor who can dish it out as well as take it.

Drafted from Chicago, he had always been in the Black Hawks' system and consequently knows most of the Chicago players. This fact makes him play all the harder against them and as a result, he was a stand-out performer in the Detroit-Chicago games last year.

John was a star junior player with the Chicago-sponsored St. Catharines TeePees. In his final year in the OHA, he led the league in scoring with 99 points on 48 goals and 51 assists.

This display earned him a shot at the parent team the next fall. Surprisingly, he survived the training camp cuts and started the 1958-59 season with Chicago. But after only six games he was farmed out to Calgary for more seasoning. He was recalled in December and stayed with the Hawks the rest of the year.

A Westerner born in High River, Alberta, John now lives in Nanton, where he works in the summer with his father driving a truck delivering oil to farmers.

MICHAEL GERALD (JERRY) MELNYK

Center

Born: Edmonton, Alberta, September 16, 1934. Height 5' 10". Weight 175 lbs.

After five long years of trying, Jerry Melnyk became a National Leaguer last season. These were five years of not only attempting to prove to his bosses that he was capable of playing in the NHL, but striving to prove to himself that he could do it.

Jerry first started with the Edmonton Flyers in 1954 and for the next five seasons was the most popular, valuable and industrious member of the team. He centered his regular line, worked on the power play and served as a penalty killer.

But he never quite was able to make the big jump to the NHL. It seemed during all those Detroit training camps that he attended that he was judged too slow for the National League. But he never gave up and took his reversals philosophically.

Perhaps his biggest setback came in the 1955-56 playoffs when he was called up by Detroit after his finest season with Edmonton. In a game against Toronto he failed to click on an important breakaway. Apparently, he could not live down this fatal mistake, and he was returned to the Flyers for what proved to be three more years.

After another sparkling season in 1958-59, Melnyk was afforded every chance to make the Red Wings last fall. With new-found determination and effort he did. Sid Abel put him at center between two other Western League players, Val Fonteyne and Billy McNeill, on the first day of camp and they stayed together through the first half of the season.

This effective unit caused much favorable comment and soon became the people's choice. The threesome was broken up in February by McNeill's trade; but it was put back together again with the installation of Len "Comet" Haley in the right wing slot.

They immediately clicked and went on to become the sensation of the playoffs. Melnyk himself was the hero of one of the games when he scored the winning goal in overtime of the fourth game.

Melnyk's part in the success of these lines and his linemates is not to be underestimated. Regardless of the records, which show that he scored but ten goals last year, it is felt that he turned in an adequate first year in the NHL. He demonstrated his smooth style time and time again. He is a deliberate-type player, not a fast skater, but one who gets the job done.

Jerry (he spells it with a "J" despite the "G" in his middle name) resides during the off-season in his native Edmonton with his wife, Jeannette, and their two children, daughter Judy and son Bruce. Melnyk keeps busy in the summer as a greenskeeper on a local golf course.

GERALD BERNARD (GERRY) ODROWSKI

Defense

Born: Trout Creek, Ontario, October 4, 1938. Height 5' 11". Weight 185 lbs.

Gerry Odrowski is one of the most outstanding young defense prospects in the Detroit organization. In only his first year of pro hockey, Gerry last year was voted the top defenseman in the Eastern League.

The 22-year-old rearguard spent the season with the Sudbury Wolves, the Red Wings' EPHL affiliate. In 67 games, he scored eight goals and assisted on 21 others while playing a steady defensive game.

In the post-season voting for the loop's stellar defenseman, Odrowski beat out J. C. Tremblay, highly-thought-of Montreal farmhand, for the honor. Tremblay is expected to take over on the Canadiens' blueline whenever an opening develops. Gerry also was elected to one of the defense positions on the second All-Star team.

Originally a right wing, Odrowski didn't move back to defense until three years ago, when he was 18. The switch was made under his coach, Bucko McDonald, who also guided Gerry when he played in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, in 1958-59.

Bucko, a former Red Wing defense star, first coached Odrowski when he was 16 playing intermediate hockey in Sudridge, Ontario, Both McDonald and Odrowski come from the same Ontario town, Trout Creek, a small lumber center thirty miles south of North Bay.

Jack Adams demonstrated his faith in Gerry's promise and ability to make the jump to the NHL when he traded Jim Morrison last summer. This move, while it gained a needed right winger, left a vacancy in the Detroit defense that Odrowski is expected to fill.

Fans are warned not to let Gerry's appearance fool them into thinking he is much older than his years—he was just 22 the day before the season opened. He is prematurely bald due to a sickness he had when he was seven years old.

MURRAY CLIFFORD OLIVER

Center

Born: Hamilton, Ontario, November 14, 1937. Height 5' 9½". Weight 170 lbs.

Murray Oliver likely will never forget his 22nd birthday. On the 14th of November last year, Jack Adams summoned young Murray from Edmonton. His call to the Wings was made all the more distinguished when Sid Abel immediately installed him as center for Gordie Howe on the team's big line.

From this memorable start, Oliver went on to become the first Red Wing rookie in 12 seasons, since Jim McFadden in 1947-48, to score 20 goals in his first try. Oliver hit it right on the nose despite the fact that he played only 54 games, 16 games having already gone by when he joined the team.

Oliver was rewarded for his efforts by being named the Red Wing rookie of the year. He also was the runner-up to Chicago's Bill Hay for freshman honors in the league.

What the 5'9½", 170-pound Oliver lacks in size, he makes up for with his hockey sense. The 22-year-old pivotman is known as a heady player and he has learned to use his talents to overcome the difficulties met in playing against larger opponents.

A pure product of the Detroit farm system, Oliver first pulled on a sweater of a Wing-sponsored team in 1955. That year he had jumped from police league hockey to Detroit's Junior "B" Club in Burlington, Ontario as a 17-year-old.

He moved up to the Tiger Cubs in his home town of Hamilton for the next two seasons. Upon compiling an outstanding record of 90 points on 34 goals and 56 assists in the 1957-58 season with Hamilton, he was voted the Ontario Hockey Association's most valuable player, receiving the "Red" Tilson Memorial Trophy.

He was turned professional the next year at the Red Wings' Olympia training camp. In his initial year with Edmonton, he tied Jerry Melnyk as the Flyers' top point scorer. He was 17th in the WHL scoring derby and ran second in the rookie race. But he was given the nod as the most popular player on the Edmonton team.

Last fall he started out where he had left off with Bud Poile's club, leading the team with 20 points in the 16 games he played before receiving the call from Detroit. He got his first NHL goal at Boston a week after he reported. He performed capably and steadily from then on, and capped his initial showing in the big time with three goals in the final two games of the season to reach the coveted 20-goal mark.

During his junior hockey days, Murray learned the carpenter's trade and spends his summers building houses. He is single and lives in Hamilton in the off-season.

RENE MARCEL PRONOVOST

Defense

Born: Lac a la Tortue, Quebec, June 15, 1930. Height 6'. Weight 190 lbs.

The most successful French-Canadian player in league history outside the Montreal organization is Marcel Pronovost, Detroit's nine-year veteran defenseman. His personal success hit its highest point last year when he made the first All-Star team for the first time since he came into the league in 1950. This honor made a three-year All-Star stretch for him; in each of the previous two seasons, he had been a member of the second "dream" team.

A fixture on the Detroit ice stage on the defense line since 1951, Marcel is a real student of the game. He has demonstrated his thorough knowledge of hockey on television when he was called upon to explain by words and action some of the technical maneuvers of the sport.

A quiet, studious and serious individual off the ice, Pronovost is not much different on the ice. He is a cool, calculating player—one who thinks out the next move before performing it. He has become dedicated to his game and to his adopted city, Detroit. He has been a natural leader on and off the ice since he started up the Detroit trail in 1947.

When first sighted by scout Marcel Cote, Marcel was playing juvenile hockey in Shawinigan Falls, Quebec. He was sent to Windsor as a candidate for the Detroit-sponsored Spitfires. As early as this in his hockey career, Marcel's determination was shown by his equal interest in his improvement in hockey, in learning the English language, and in his education. His establishment in all three areas is adequate proof of his profound success in all endeavors.

Marcel turned professional in 1949 when he was 19. Assigned to Omaha, he specialized in being a rushing defenseman and set a record for point scoring by rear guards. He was named rookie of the year and was called up to the Red Wings as a playoff substitute in 1950. He appeared often enough in Detroit's successful Stanley Cup drive to have his name put on hockey's most historic trophy as one of the youngest players to achieve this honor.

Starting with Detroit the following season, he was sent to Indianapolis in mid-year to gain some additional defense polish under the coaching of Ott Heller. Though he was with the Capitols only half a season, Marcel was named to the second AHL All-Star team.

Pronovost returned to Detroit to stay in 1951. In the intervening years, his all-out play back of the blue line combined with his daring rink-long rushes have thrilled thousands of fans, both in Detroit and around the league. He has become an established and respected defenseman. A tribute to the Detroit organization, he is a pure product of its farm system.

Married, with two children, Marcel makes his permanent home in a Montreal suburb, Beauharnois. An avid golfer, he is second only to Gordie Howe among the Red Wings and is rated as one of the best in hockey. Beyond his athletic accomplishments, Marcel is proud of his unofficial reputation as the best spoken bi-lingual player in the game.

MARC AVELLIN REAUME

Defense

Born: LaSalle, Ontario, February 7, 1934. Height 6' 1". Weight 185 lbs.

Marc Reaume became a Red Wing in perhaps the most unnoticed manner of any newly-acquired player. The 26-year-old defenseman was the "silent partner" in the trade last February with Toronto that saw Red Kelly go to the Maple Leafs.

While all the attention was directed to Kelly's move to Toronto, Reaume quietly joined the Wings and proceeded to take his place on the blueline, defending the Red Wing cause.

To judge Reaume on his play of the past two seasons would be most unfair to him. Despite being a five-year man with Toronto, he had for the last two years been a seldom-used spare defenseman, although he did get into 68 games in 1957-58 and 51 the next season. During this pair of seasons, Detroit had tried to obtain Reaume but Toronto, although not using him, was reluctant to let him go to another club.

After finally coming to Detroit with 18 games left to play in the season, Marc played only nine games due to two separate disabling injuries—a separated shoulder and a sprained toe—which caused him to sit out the other nine starts.

Jack Adams says, "Marc never was in playing shape with the Leafs because of all his bench sitting. That's why he got hurt twice right after we got him. Now as a regular, he'll be in condition and he promises to be one of our top defensemen."

Because of his size and his fondness for bodychecking, Reaume poses a threat to opposing forwards who go around with their heads down. Marc has proved that he can hit with the best of them. He is a defensive-type rearguard, not prone to rush too much, but one who can carry the puck out of danger.

A native of LaSalle, Ontario, a Windsor suburb, he makes his year-around home there with his wife, Jane, and two sons, Michael and Allan, and a daughter, Sandra, born in September.

a Traded to Detroit for Leonard Kelly, February, 1960.

DENNIS MELVILLE RIGGIN

Goaltender

Born: Kincardine, Ontario, April 11, 1936. Height 5' 11". Weight 165 lbs.

This year marks Dennis Riggin's tenth anniversary as a member of the Red Wing organization. Yet up until last February, he had never played an NHL game with Detroit.

As the number two goalie in the Detroit system, Riggin has spent the last four years tending goal for the Wings' top farm club, Edmonton, in the Western League.

At the age of 14, Riggin first signed up with the Wings, playing goal in junior hockey with Detroit-sponsored teams in Windsor and Hamilton for five seasons. He was turned pro in 1956 and reported to Edmonton. After a fine first year in which he allowed less than three goals a game, he was voted the rookie of the year in the WHL.

The slender, brown-haired, 160-pounder has been waiting for his call to Detroit duty ever since. Practically every year goalie substitutes have been necessary but due mainly to the distance involved (Edmonton is over 2000 miles from Detroit), another farm system goalie other than Riggin was brought in.

But it was a different situation last year. When Terry Sawchuk requested a rest in February, Riggin had sufficient time to get to Detroit before the next game. In addition, it was felt that Riggin deserved this opportunity to show his stuff.

Unfortunately for the 24-year-old netminder, the Detroit team was in a deep slump at the time of his arrival. In the nine games he played, the Wings won only two, lost six and tied one. One of the victories was Riggin's first NHL shutout, a 5-0 blanking of Chicago here. Despite allowing 32 goals, he proved himself to be a big leaguer in the eyes of the Red Wing management.

As was the case with Sawchuk, Riggin had to survive a serious eye injury to continue with his hockey career. In November, 1958, in a practice session with the Flyers, Riggin suffered a detached retina when hit in the eye by a puck shot by Brian Smith.

His season was of course ended right then with only 13 games played. For months, Riggin had to lie in bed with his head held perfectly immobile between sandbags. Now fully recovered, he shows no signs of the injury, but is prompt to strap on a face mask before taking part in a practice.

A very friendly Irishman, Dennis lives in Kincardine, Ontario. Besides his wife, his family includes two sons, Lawrence John and Patrick Michael.

TERRANCE GORDON (TERRY) SAWCHUK

Goaltender

Born: Winnipeg, Manitoba, December 28, 1929. Height 5' 11". Weight 180 lbs.

A veteran of ten years in the NHL, eight with Detroit and two with Boston, Terry Sawchuk has been called the "greatest goalkeeper in the history of the National League."

At the age of 30, approaching his 31st birthday in December, he is by far and away the dean among his fellow goalies in point of service in the league.

A three-time winner of the Vezina Trophy as the league's leading goalie and five-time All-Star team member, Sawchuk is regarded by many to be the finest player ever to strap on a pair of goalie pads. At one stretch of his legendary career, Sawchuk completed five straight years of allowing less than two goals a game in what was truly a phenomenal demonstration of goaltending.

He led the circuit in shutouts three times and, going into this season, had 81 to his credit, most among active goalies. He established an outstanding mark at the outset of his pro career by being chosen as rookie of the year in each of the three leagues in which he played—the United States with Omaha in 1947-48, the American with Indianapolis in 1948-49, and the National with Detroit in 1950-51. He is the only player in the game's history to win this award in every professional league in which he had competed.

Sawchuk's finest moment occurred in the 1951-52 playoffs when he chalked up four shutouts and allowed only five goals as the champion Red Wings won the Stanley Cup in a never-to-be-broken record of eight straight games.

Sawchuk first came into the Detroit organization when he applied for and got the goalie job on a Detroit-sponsored juvenile team in his home town of Winnipeg. He developed rapidly and at 16 he was playing junior "A" hockey in Galt. When he was 17, he was moved out of the junior ranks and started on a pro career with Omaha, the Wings' farm club in the old U.S. league. The rest of his story has already been told—outstanding rookie awards, leading goalkeeper trophies, and promotions up the ladder until he reached the top with the Red Wings.

As a farm system goalie, Terry was called upon to fill in for Harry Lumley for seven games in 1949-50 and proved himself ready for NHL play. The following year, he was handed the regular Detroit job when Lumley was traded to Chicago. The All-Star game of 1950 was his first as a Detroit regular and the 20-year-old rookie turned back the game's best players as Detroit won 7-1.

Six years later, Sawchuk himself suffered the same fate as his predecessor; namely, having a farmhand substitute for him, prove to be a big leaguer, and take over his job after a trade. Terry's successor was Glenn Hall, who after filling in for nine games over two seasons, was given the permanent post when Terry was traded to Boston. When Sawchuk in his second year with the Bruins took sick, left the line-up for good and retired, Jack Adams saw a chance to get him back and did so four years ago.

All through his early years, Terry was displaying the new style that he brought to the game—the crouch position. This unique stance plus his remarkably fast reflexes and excellent hands coupled with his love of the sport which made him a die-hard, fiery competitor are the items that made him one of the most successful goaltenders in history.

Last season, the 30-year-old Sawchuk's health acted up and he was forced out of the line-up on two occasions, for three games in November and for nine games in February. Both absences, although the first was sudden and involuntary and the second was requested and voluntary, were caused by neuritis, a nerve conition brought on by fatigue and exhaustion. When he was between the pipes, Terry had his best year since he returned to Detroit from Boston. His five shutouts upped his regular season total to 81, only 13 short of the great George Hainsworth's all-time record of 94. Sawchuk was chiefly responsible for the Wings' great start last season in which they went undefeated in their first six games. Terry was sensational, blanking the opponents twice and allowing only five goals in the six games.

Of Ukrainian descent, Sawchuk was born in West Kildonian, a section of Winnipeg. He became an American citizen last November. He long ago took up permanent residence in a Detroit suburb, living with his wife, Pat, and four children. In the business world, he has two interests: he owns a fleet of refuse trucks and is part-owner of a tavern on Grand River that bears his name.

* League Leader

BRIAN STUART SMITH

Left Wing

Born: Creighton Mines, Ontario, December 6, 1937. Height 6'. Weight 180 lbs.

Brian Smith is perhaps the only son of a former National Hockey League player to be playing in the NHL today. Smitty is endeavoring to follow in the footsteps of his father, Stuart Smith, who played with the Montreal Canadiens during the early 1940's. This 22-year-old flashy left winger seems to have all the talent necessary to make it big with the Red Wings.

Developed in the Detroit farm system, Smith has worked his way up through Hamilton, Edmonton and Hershey. However, last season was only his second year of professional hockey.

After turning pro with Edmonton in September, 1958, and starting the year with the Flyers, Smith got into only 20 games before being put out of action with a serious knee injury in December.

The badly damaged left knee required surgery which ended young Smith's skating for the year. The successful recuperation period, which took place in both Edmonton and Detroit, lasted five months after the accident.

Smith was called up from Hamilton for four games three years ago and picked up his first NHL point, an assist. Last season, the left flanker was summoned from Hershey for one game in November before joining the team in January for the remainder of the schedule.

With the AHL Bears, he had proved to be a sensation and was considered one of the best rookies in Hershey's history.

Smith's initial NHL goal came on his first shot in his first game upon joining the Wings last year. The occasion was a Red Wing-Black Hawk game at Chicago, but Smith's score was overshadowed by the fact that this same night Gordie Howe tied Maurice Richard in total career points.

Born in Creighton Mines, Smith has spent most of his life in Smiths Falls, Ontario. Married this past summer, Smitty spent the off-season working in a lumber mill in Kenora.

NORMAN VICTOR ALEXANDER ULLMAN

Center

Born: Provost, Alberta, December 26, 1935. Height 5' 10". Weight 185 lbs.

One of the foremost exponents of the expression "action speaks louder than words" is the Red Wings' young Norm Ullman. Going along in his normal quiet and unobtrusive but efficient manner, Ullman now is in his sixth season as a Detroiter and his seventh year in the professional end of the sport.

Jack Adams calls him "one of the most underrated players in the league." "Perhaps this is due to his style of play," the Detroit Manager states, "but regardless of his lack of official recognition, we consider Normie one of our star players."

Shy, silent and retiring off the ice, Ullman doesn't quite shed these characteristics in a game as he is unspectacular and unemotional in action. But the 24-year-old center has plenty of spirit, and is no one to take an undue amount of punishment.

When he does explode and retaliate, his unfortunate rival discovers that he has his hands full of an aroused Ullman. He doesn't look for trouble, but he won't back down if trouble presents itself. If his famous, or infamous, stick-swinging incident with Maurice Richard in December of the 1958-59 season is recalled, it would serve as a perfect example of this.

For the past three seasons, Norm has been a 20-goal man. Last year he equaled his personal high in scoring with 58 points, good for second place on the team for the second straight year, and 12th in the league. His 24 goals in 1959-60 are a personal high-water mark for him in NHL play.

Despite his relatively short tenure with the Red Wings, Ullman has shot up to 14th on the scoring list in Detroit Hockey Club history. With another good year in 1960-61 he stands an excellent chance to crash the select inner circle of the top ten high scorers in all-time Red Wing lore.

The stocky but powerful Westerner began his pro puck-chasing career in the Detroit system in 1954. The season previous, he had led the Wing-sponsored Edmonton Oil Kings to the Memorial Cup finals, the highest point any Detroit-backed junior team has ever reached.

Last year's Oil Kings equalled this by gaining the finals but like Ullman's teammates, they lost out to the Chicago-sponsored St. Catharines Teepees.

After a season with the Edmonton Flyers, during which they won the Western League title and playoff championship, Ullman moved up to the Wings for the 1955-56 campaign. He spent his first year getting adjusted to the more rugged NHL play, then proceded to take over a regular center spot the following year, working quietly but effectively.

Married and the father of two children, son Gordon (named after Gordie Howe) and daughter Linda, Ullman's permanent address is in Edmonton, where he is employed by the city as a traffic clerk during the summer.

DETROIT HOCKEY HALL OF FAME

Past and present members of the Detroit Hockey Club are elected to the Hall of Fame by the Detroit Hockey Writers' Association. The original group of selections numbered ten. Seven have been added, and present regulations call for the addition of a single nominee annually. The Hall of Fame is displayed in the lobby opposite the Red Wing dressing room.
